Connecting Healthcare Innovations, Investors & Industry

HOMAN PANAHI

Managing Partner
Vator Securities

Homan is the founder and CEO of the Swedish investment banking firm, Vator Securities. A company that helps fast-growing health tech companies get access to financing and supports them from beginning to IPO.

While studying for his Ph.D. at Stockholm University Homan Panahi got the idea for Vator Securities. The big investment banks were not looking at the small health tech companies with immense growth potential like the ones Homan Panahi was in contact with. He thought that the companies didn't get the attention they deserved and, therefore, missed out on opportunities for qualified transaction advice and access to capital.

Vator Securities was founded with the focus of being an active company builder and provides an extensive range of capital market and advisory services to cutting-edge public and private growth companies with an emphasis on the life science, medical technology, and diagnostics sectors. The company's goal is to help to build the unicorns of the future. Sweden and the Nordics are according to Homan Panahi the perfect place to do this.

Vator Securities acted as sole book runner in the largest ever directed share issue of a diagnostic company in the Nordics.
